Course Summary

This free course is for adults looking to gain new confidence to use numbers to track their fitness development. Throughout the seven - week course you will build your numeracy confidence by blending activities in the gym and day to day calculations. Gathering baseline fitness data from fitness trackers and gym equipment you will track your fitness and set yourself personal fitness goals.

Upon completion of the course you will receive a free months membership to the gym. Boosting your numeracy can help you with everyday tasks like understanding household bills, budgeting and helping children with homework, to unlocking new opportunities to further your education and progressing at work.
